Continuation of 13. Other: Applicant asserts the argument that Wical '515, Wical'560, Borgida, and Wical '788 fail to describe or subbest "an addition of a concept to a machine-readable network of interrelated concepts." See Amendment, page 12. The Examiner respectfully disagrees. Wical discloses "a knowledge base that associates terms of the document with categories of a classification system to develop contextual associations for terminology." See WICAL, '560, col. 4, lines 39-44. Wherein the knowledge base may be read, accessed, and queried by a hardware implementation such as a computer, one of ordinary skill in the art would have been able to readily discern that said knowledge base would read upon a "machine-readable network of interrelated concepts."

Additionally, Applicant asserts the argument that WICAL '515 fails to disclose the recited feature of "concept" because individual words or phrases would not read upon the feature of "normalized semantic representations." See Amendment, page 17. The Examiner respectfully disagrees in that under the broadest reasonable interpretation, the use of individual words or phrases to define a category would readily read upon the recited feature of a "normalized semantic representation." That is, wherein letters are combined to create discernable terms and phrases, said terms and phrases would sufficiently read upon the requirement of "normalized semantic representations."

For the aforementioned reasons above, Applicant's arguments are found unpersuasive and the rejections under 35 U.S.C. 103 are sustained..
